Course Overview

This course is focused on the concepts, procedures and programming parameters that are specific to the XTL5000 mobile radio. Previous knowledge of general radio circuits, basic alignment procedures (like Reference Oscillator, Power) and basic radio programming (concepts of Zone, Personality, Radio Wide parameters, etc) is assumed. Participants will learn how to identify, program, checkout, align, disassemble and troubleshoot the radio. The class combines lecture, practical examples and labs, with emphasis on the hands-on practice and the parameters and procedures that differentiate the XTL5000 from other Motorola radios.

Required Prerequisites:

Radio Systems Overview (RCS002-E)
Theory of Radio Operation (RCS003-E)
CPS Programming and template Building Overview (ADT001)

Audience

Radio technicians

Course Objectives

Disassemble and reassemble the radio in accordance with proper procedures.
Demonstrate knowledge of the programming parameters that are particular to XTL5000 radios.
Perform the alignment procedures of an XTL5000 radio.
Describe the theory of operation of an XTL5000 radio in comparison to other models.

Benefits to You

Reduce downtime due to failures.
Ability to successfully maintain a fleet of XTL5000 radios.
Quickly determine what repairs are necessary and what action is required.
Product-focused training that takes advantage of your previous knowledge and experience with other radios.
